Stipend shifts increased to 6 this month, with 3 EMT's taking part in the overnight program. One of the EMT's was offered a fulltime firefighter job at District 7 and will no longer be doing stipend shifts with the HD#2. I will hold off on offering a per-diem position to a Paramedic so I can monitor this year's budget more closely.

APPARATUS

Will be going to Braun in Chehalis on February 20th for inspection and pickup of new ambulance. I will be looking in to finding a space to park our back up rigs, until the new station is built. M4 had batteries replaced, it has over 130,000 miles and has been remounted once, Braun is putting together a quote for the next ambulance build.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT – Julie Petersen

February 2019

Water Damage at the Cle Elum Primary Care Clinic

To date the cleanup and drying process at Cle Elum is complete. After the asbestos abatement VK Powell and their sub-contractors were provided access to assess the final scope. The construction area is still isolated and under negative pressure with barriers and HEPA exhaust fan for the reconstruction process. Zurich, the insurance carrier, hired a building consultant who is developing a construction cost to compare against VK Powell. The building consultant and VK Powell are in direct contact to discuss scope and details of the reconstruction. VK Powell expects to start reconstruction 2/25.

Appointing a Commissioner

Two District #2 residents expressed interest in filling the vacant Board position. Commissioners Nicholson and Benjamin will conduct interviews prior to the February Board meeting. An assessment of the candidates will be conducted in executive session.

Ambulance Garage

Leadership (Julie, Geoff, Rhonda and Scott) will be meeting with KDA prior to the March Board meeting to review conceptual designs for the garage options based on the master site plan as well as additional information gleaned through site visits and EMS staff.

Real-Estate Offers

I just wanted to note that I periodically (maybe twice a year) receive inquiries from parties who may be interested in purchasing land from Hospital District #2. I have not been forwarding these inquiries based on the 2018 Master Site plan.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 13.5 million (19.5% of the population).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people, and the Government has set out a strategy for the 21st century in the White Paper on Ageing Better: Our Future (Department of Health 1999). This sets out a vision of a society in which older people are able to live well, and to contribute to society. The White Paper sets out a number of key objectives, including:

• to ensure that older people are able to live well, and to contribute to society;
 • to ensure that older people are able to live independently, and to participate in the life of their communities;
 • to ensure that older people are able to live in their own homes, and to receive the care and support they need.

The White Paper also sets out a number of key actions, including:

• to improve the health and well-being of older people, and to reduce the risk of illness and disability;
 • to improve the care and support of older people, and to ensure that they receive the care and support they need;
 • to improve the housing and living conditions of older people, and to ensure that they have access to the services and facilities they need.

The White Paper also sets out a number of key principles, including:

• the principle of independence, which means that older people should be able to live independently, and to participate in the life of their communities;
 • the principle of choice, which means that older people should be able to choose the care and support they need;
 • the principle of dignity, which means that older people should be treated with respect and dignity.

The White Paper also sets out a number of key indicators, including:

• the number of older people who are able to live independently, and to participate in the life of their communities;
 • the number of older people who are able to live in their own homes, and to receive the care and support they need;

Operations report to Hospital District #2 Board of Commissioners
February, 2019

Ancillary Service Operation Report:

- Swedish Specialty Services

FMC is continuing to utilize the space leased to Swedish. At this point we do not have a timeframe on when the repair work will be complete, but it is anticipated it won't be until March. There has been no response from Swedish regarding their plans for specialty services in this location.

- Cle Elum PT

Due to the flood and inclement weather, volumes were down for Cle Elum PT in January. Out of 182 available appointments, 152 were kept and 40 were cancelled. Of the 40 cancellations we were able to fill 12 of those appointments with another patient.

- Ambulance Garage

KDA will join us at our March meeting to review the required elements of the Ambulance Garage.

Respectfully submitted by Rhonda Holden, MSN, CENP

Wildfires/ from A1

State Sen. Brad Hawkins, R-East Wenatchee, said the plan should be a top priority for legislators.

"I believe that this issue of wildfires and wildfire suppression is as important to the state of Washington as education, as mental health, as other infrastructure issues," Hawkins said.

The federal government shutdown could hamper firefighting efforts, Franz said, noting that some training programs already have been canceled because of the shutdown.

Between 2013 and 2018, DNR said it cost an average of $153 million in state and federal money per year to fight wildfires. That period included Washington's record-setting wildfire seasons in 2014 and 2015.

Fires those two years destroyed hundreds of homes, burned 2,300 square miles and in 2015 killed three firefighters.

More recent fire seasons in Washington have reduced air quality across the state in summer months.

Last year, DNR responded to more than 1,850 wildfires, a record number, that burned about 440,000 acres. Most of the fires were put out while still small, the agency said.

As the state's population grows, more than 2.2 million homes now lie in the potential path of wildfires, according to a recent U.S. Forest Service study.

The highest risks are in Eastern Washington, which has hotter and drier summers than the region west of the Cascade Range.

"Wildfire fire is not an east side or west side problem. It is not an urban or rural problem. Wildfire is a problem for all of Washington," Franz said.

Fire suppression costs make up about 9 percent of the total costs of wildfires, the agency said. Much higher are the costs of lost business, infrastructure, habitat, timber, grazing, and agriculture resources, disaster recovery, and health impacts, DNR said.

"We can't stop fires from occurring, but we can stop doing the same things we've always done in dealing with them," said Chief Dave LaFave of Cowlitz 2 Fire & Rescue and the Washington Fire Chiefs Association.

 President Donald Trump pauses while speaking about the partial government shutdown, immigration and border security in the Diplomatic Reception Room of the White House in Washington Saturday

Shutdown/ from A1

The Republican plan is a trade-off: Trump's border wall funding in exchange for temporary protection from deportation for some immigrants. To try to draw more bipartisan support, it adds $12.7 billion in supplemental funding for regions hit by hurricanes, wildfires and other natural disasters. All told, it would provide about $350 billion for nine Cabinet departments whose budgets are stalled. Other than the wall and immigration-related provisions, the core measure hews closely to a package of spending bills unveiled by House Democrats last week.

In exchange for $5.7 billion for Trump's wall, the legislation would extend temporary protections against deportation to around 700,000 immigrants covered by the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals program, or DACA.

Trump has tried dismantling the Obama-era program, which covers people who arrived in the U.S. illegally as children, but has been blocked by federal lawsuits.

That figure is substantially lower than the 1.8 million people Trump proposed protecting a year ago in a plan that also included other immigration changes and $25 billion to pay the full costs of building his wall. Trump's proposal was among several the Senate rejected last Friday.

TEMPORARY PROTECTIONS

The new Senate bill would also provide three more years of temporary protections against deportation to around 325,000 immigrants in the U.S. who have fled countries racked by natural disasters or violent conflicts. "Trump has ended that program, called Temporary Protected Status, for El Salvador, which has the most holders of the protected status, as well as for Honduras, Nicaragua and several other countries."

Democrats said that Trump's proposal for a three-year DACA extension didn't go far enough and that he was simply offering to restore elements of immigration provisions held taken away. And immigration advocates protested a Trump-backed plan to require children from El Salvador, Honduras and Guatemala who are seeking asylum in the U.S. to apply at processing centers to be set up in Central America.

Some on the right, including conservative commentator Ann Coulter, accused Trump of offering "amnesty."

"No, Amnesty is not a part of my offer," Trump tweeted Sunday in response. He added: "Amnesty will be used only on a much bigger deal, whether on immigration or something else."

While the House and the Senate are scheduled to be back in session Tuesday, no votes have been scheduled on Trump's plan. McConnell spokesman David Pepp said the GOP leader "will move" to vote on consideration of the president's proposal this week. The bill includes funding for most domestic agencies.

House Democrats, meanwhile, are pushing ahead this week with their legislation to reopen the government and add $1 billion for border security — including 75 more immigration judges and infrastructure improvements — but no funding for the wall.

On Tuesday, Trump tweeted that Democrats are playing "political games" and repeated his claims that the wall is a solution to drugs and crime — although the Drug Enforcement Administration says only a small percentage of drugs comes into the country through ports of entry.

"Without a Wall our Country can never have Border or National Security," Trump tweeted. "With a powerful Wall or Steel Barrier, Crime Rates (and Drugs) will go substantially down all over the U.S. The Dems know this but want to play political games. Mist finally be done correctly. No Cave!"

The impact of the government's longest-ever shutdown continues to ripple across the nation. The longest previous shutdown was 21 days in 1995-96, when Bill Clinton was president.

The Transportation Security Administration said the percentage of its airport screeners missing work hit 10 percent on Sunday, up from 3.1 percent on the comparable Sunday a year ago.

The screeners, who have been working without pay, have been citing financial hardship as the reason they can't report to work. Even so, the agency said it screened 1.78 million passengers Sunday with only 6.9 percent having to wait 15 minutes or longer to get through security.

Asked in an interview on "Fox News Sunday" whether Trump's Saturday proposal represented a "final offer," Vice President Mike Pence said the White House was willing to negotiate.

"Well, of course," Pence said. "The legislative process is a negotiation."

THANK YOU

Thank you to Cle Elum fire crew

At 11:35 a.m. our son was born while driving to the Ellensburg hospital. My wife, BethAnn had her water break at Red Bridge Road and Teanaway, in Cle Elum, and in less than a mile she delivered our son while I was driving!

She's an awesome strong lady! I called 911 and the fire/aid crew from Cle Elum arrived in 10 minutes and did an excellent job calming and caring for us, ultimately loading my wife and newborn son in their ambulance and taking the to KVH in Ellensburg.

I also wanted to thank the state trooper who arrived within seconds and helped with traffic control and helped keep me calm. Thanks to everyone!

CWU to host Civil Rights exhibition

For the DAILY RECORD

"For All the World to See: Visual Culture and the Struggle for Civil Rights," a nationally-touring exhibition from the National Endowment for the Arts (NEH) on the Road, will be at the CWU Museum of Culture and Environment (MCE) from Jan. 30 through March 16, according to a news release from CWU.

Students from the Diversity and Equity Center (DEC) have collaborated with students from the Museum Studies minor on a companion exhibit, that situates this history within the Pacific Northwest. This exhibit will be on display from Feb. 1-8 in the DEC, located in Black Hall room 105-1.

Through a collection of photographs, television clips, art posters, and historic artifacts, the exhibit traces how images and media disseminated to the American public transformed the modern civil rights movement and jolted Americans, both black and white, out of a state of denial or complacency.

Visitors will explore dozens of forceful and persuasive visual images, including photographs from magazines, such as LIFE, JET, and EBONY; CBS news footage; and TV clips from "The Ed Sullivan Show." Also included are civil rights-era objects that exemplify the range of negative and positive imagery — from Aunt Jemima syrup dispensers and 1930s produce advertisements to Jackie Robinson baseball ephemera and 1960s children's toys with African American portraiture.

"For All the World to See" is not a history of the civil rights movement, but rather an exploration of the vast number of powerful images that influenced how Americans perceived race and the struggle for equality.

Throughout winter quarter, the MCE, in conjunction with CWU's Africana and Black Studies and the DEC, is hosting a series of events that address themes from the exhibition to include:

■ Jan. 31, 5 p.m. Opening Celebration: Music, food, and speakers to honor the opening of For All the World to See

■ Feb. 19, 5 p.m. Being Black in Ellensburg: A safe space for CWU's black students, faculty, and Wellington Events Center staff and Ellensburg community members to share stories.

■ Feb. 21, 5 p.m. Un/Belonging: Can People of Color Call Ellensburg "Home"? A panel featuring the voices of people of color in our community as they reflect on living in Ellensburg.

■ Feb. 28, 5 p.m. Intersectionality and Solidarity: A Roundtable Discussion with Masonya Bennett, Ph.D. Join Bennett along with a diverse group of students, faculty, staff, and community members as they consider new forms of solidarity going forward.

Also offered are tours of the exhibit, led by CWU black student leaders from CWU's Black Student Union, S.I.S.T.E.R.S., Brother 2 Brother, and Scholars in Action. These tours, called "Walking in Our Shoes" are open to the public and will take place:

■ Feb. 7, 5 p.m.
■ Feb. 14, 3 p.m.
■ Feb. 21, 11 a.m.

The exhibition was curated by Maurice Berger, research professor and chief curator at the Center for Art, Design and Visual Culture at the University of Maryland, Baltimore. It was co-organized by The Center for Art, Design, and Visual Culture and the National Museum of African American History and Culture, Smithsonian Institution.

Robotics/from A1

"I think that STEM classes should be in the classroom as early as possible," Eng said. "Not everyone does sports and for some kids robotics and programming is their thing and it's another avenue for them to explore, learn and grow, but also have a chance to compete."

Mount Stuart's robotics club is comprised of fourth- and fifth-grade students. There are 24 students and eight teams make up the league.

GAME DAY

On a Saturday morning, like any competitive sport, Mount Stuart's gymnasium was filled with eager students getting ready to compete against each other. Students came as far as Seattle came to compete in a range of mini competitions.

Two robots compete against each other in teams of two. Each student has 60 seconds to score as many points as possible through a variety of tactics. "Communications is a big part of it," Eng said. "When the kids get paired up for qualifying match they have to find their team alliance and talk about what can your robot do what can my robot do and come up with a strategy together."

Eng crosses his arms and watches as some of his students prepares for a match.

"They go to these events and see middle schoolers who have been doing it for years and see new designs on robots and the kids get inspired by those ideas," he said.

Emma Banker and James Koepke from Wenatchee rep green matching robotics sweatshirts and hover over their robot. They go over every detail making sure nothing is amiss before giving the OK to set off to the arena. Koepke is the team's self-proclaimed engineer note taker for the tournament.

Koepke meticulously keeps track of how many points his teams robot wins and whether or not they had a "good" or a "bad" match.

"I'm the engineer for this team so I basically write down everything that happened for that day. Engineers are kind of like the National Geographic they write down everything and take really good notes," Koepke said.

When asked why he likes being in a robots club, Koepke said it keeps his mind running and he hopes one day he could work for NASA and go to space.

Homeless/from A1

"We provided a hot lunch and showed movies," she said. "I was very pleased with the coming together of the community to make this happen."

While the resource fair was going on, teams of volunteers focused on separate regions of the county to locate homeless residents. Two teams went to Upper County, looking at Easton and Cle Elum. Blackson said one team went east to Vantage and Kittitas, while another walked the tracks in Ellensburg and checked local parks trying to locate potential homeless camps.

"We pretty much covered the whole county that way," she said. "We really didn't find a lot of folks that way, most folks came into Hal Holmes for the event or had been at the cold weather shelter prior."

One of the challenges Blackson said the teams encounter during the count is coming across people who do not want to talk to them. She said this year they encountered three people at two different camps that were not interested in talking, and that people who are uncooperative are not included in the survey.

"They may be in a tent," she said. "It may be obvious to us they are in a tent, but we don't walk up and yank open the tent flap. If we approach a camp, we kind of stand on the outskirts and talk so people can hear."

Blackson said another challenge is finding the places where homeless people decide to stay when not in shelters. She said they work with the police and with reports they have been given from community members to better understand where the locations are.

"You just go out and look," she said.

Blackson said the main count comes from individuals using resources such as the Cold Weather Shelter and the resource fair held Thursday. She said the county has seen examples of homelessness individuals living in recreational vehicles, similar to the trend on the West Side. When these people are taken into the survey, she said they determine whether the vehicles have heat, hot water, the ability to cook hot food and take a bath. If any of those factors are missing, she said the individuals are considered to be living unsheltered.

"An RV that's plugged in and everything is considered to be housed," she said.

"This was Blackson's first time participating in the Kittitas County PIT count. She said the experience was especially rewarding to see all the community members coming together to make the event happen, and that the event is critical to the community.

"I think the count is very important," she said. "I think you can't solve the problem if you don't know the extent of the problem."

...many witnesses' schedules. Many had full time jobs, businesses to run, and lives to lead."

Weighing in, and not weighing in

Tuesday Etoy Alford Jr., a defense attorney on the case who hails from Union Gap, opted not to comment on the verdict. Also on Tuesday a family spokesperson advised the NKC Tribune that the Kingcades also opt not to comment.

Lori Clemente, of ARRF Animal Rescue, said she fielded several phone calls about the condition of the horses when concern for them surfaced. Here's what she had to say.

"After several years of fielding phone calls regarding the neglect of these beautiful animals, and several more years waiting for a trail resulting in a verdict, we are pleased that some justice was served.

"We are grateful to Kittitas County deputies and lead investigator Pete Fletcher, to Dr. Mike Fuller and Rodeo City Equine Rescue for their care of the horses after they were seized. We're also grateful to Deputy Prosecutor Jodi Hammond for never giving up. All of those people acted as the voices for these animals.

"We are hopeful the verdict sends the message that animal neglect is not taken lightly in this community.

"Finally, if you are having trouble caring for your animals, please reach out and ask for help rather than let them suffer."

What's the gauntlet lawyers face?

Asked what the biggest challenge is in an animal abuse trial, Hammond replied, "The statute requires us to prove prolonged pain and suffering and that's difficult when you're dealing with an animal, as opposed to a person who can testify."

In July 2017 the jury in the first trial was unable to convey a verdict.

Before the trial ended last week, the defense, in addition to several failed requests for a dismissal, attempted to provide the court with physical evidence never once mentioned in the two years this case has endured.

The defense argued the Kingcade's had stored a measurable number of horse-care items on the property where the horses were seized that Hammond said the prosecution has the option to retry the 13 counts that hung the jury. Tuesday she said that decision had not yet been made.

Hammond explained why the case dragged on for two years. "For instance, the defendant's didn't appear at one trial setting and Deborah had a new attorney appointed after the last trial. It was also challenging to work with so ...

Pilot dies in air crash near Ellensburg

KITTITAS COUNTY - Shortly before 5 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 17, a Kittitas County farmer notified law enforcement that a small plane had just crashed in one of his fields. First responders reported the sole occupant of the plane was 75-year-old Dr. Frank L. Smith of Wapato who was pronounced dead at the scene, just south of Ellensburg.

Under Sheriff Clay Myers reports, "The scene was secured and the FFA and county coroner were notified.

"The only circumstance reported at this time is that a few minutes before the crash Smith appropriately communicated his take off and direction from Bowers Field in Ellensburg. It is believed he was bound for Yakima.

"So the cause of the crash and/or the cause of death are not known at this time. Next of kin have been notified."

On behalf of the sheriff's office Myers expressed condolences. "Our thoughts and prayers are with the pilot's family, friends and the aviation community for their loss."

Nicholls resigns from Board

Kittitas County Hospital District-2 seeks candidates

by Jim Fossett | jim@nkttribune.com

CLE ELUM - Hospital District 2 Commissioner Claire Nicholls resigned from the board, effective Tuesday, Jan. 1.

Said Nicholls, "It's been my privilege to serve our community as a commissioner of Hospital District 2, and I want to thank my fellow commissioners for their support and understanding as I worked through my decision to resign.

"Very simply, there was no longer enough time in the day to continue pursuing all the commitments I had made, so I needed to reprioritize.

"The district is in excellent hands, with a strong board, leadership team and vision for the future. Again, thanks to all for this opportunity to serve."

In harmony with her resignation Hospital District 2's Director of Community Relations Michele Wurl began the search for a replacement Tuesday with this press release sent to the NKC Tribune.

Cricket's sixth birthday party, a very unusual one at that

By Jim Fosssett | jim@ncctribune.com

CLE ELUM — Friday, Jan. 4, six-year-old kindergarten Madison "Cricket" Wadsten had a surprise birthday party of another sort. Her 57-year-old grandfather, David Peccalato, tells the story.

"We'd decided we would have a birthday party for her with family only, but then at the last minute we changed our minds to open it up — but you know how last minute parties go. We couldn't make it happen, and when Madison found out ... she was on a computer watching cartoons. When I came in, she had her hands on her face, tears streaming.

"When we moved here in August, I started looking around for local information, groups to get involved with and so on. That's when I stumbled over Facebook's Cle Elum, What's Up and joined the group.

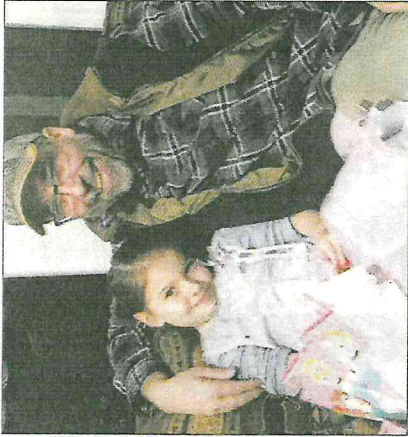

"After I saw Madison in tears I logged onto that site and put out a request to anyone who wanted to come by. No presents needed."

David said he couldn't believe the response. His post fetched hundreds of responses.

"I put out the word on Facebook a little after 5:15. Ten minutes later two or three people called — and then it kind of blew up. Even the Cle Elum Fire Department and Medic One. They brought two engines and an ambulance to tour. They got Madison into an engine and let her blow the horn. She loved that.

"Before it was over we had 65 or 70 people at the house. It was amazing. We went through a sheet cake, a big one, a couple of gallons of ice cream, and later, around 8:30 three ladies from Sobel's Take-N-Eat in Cle Elum showed up with pizzas.

"Madison was pretty excited. There were at least a dozen kids there, so she made some new friends. People brought lots of gifts. "I was in tears most of the time. I will never forget what this community did."

David said wife Debbie baked some goodies and delivered them to the fire station to close the chapter on this very special birthday story.

Cricket weighs in

After the party was over, Madison said it was the best birthday she'd ever had. Then she said, "Nanna, Papa — we need a bigger house!"

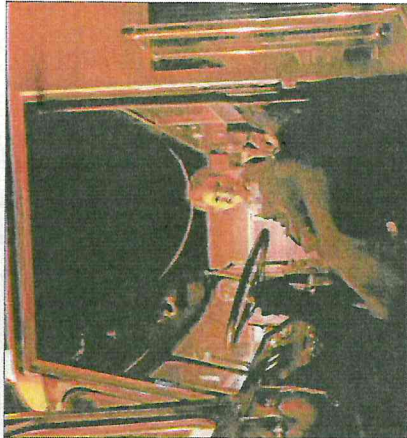

David said to top the birthday off, the next day Madison got a trip to the Family Fun Center in Tukwila.

I-90 shutdown a blessing
David was headed to work early Friday morning when Sno-where Madison lives with mom Ashley, but when Debbie found a house on 3rd Street much quicker than expected — they decided to go for it. They settled on it and moved here in August.

Being new in town, you can imagine their reaction to the impromptu birthday party. Madison is their first and only grandchild. David posted this on Facebook, "I am truly grateful for moving here. I already love this city and every-

we were off."

He said other firefighters to the rescue included Beau Foster, Cole Lowenstein, and Lt. Chase Stanley. Medic One personnel included EMT Emily Blakley and Paramedic Sonya Vavver.

About the family

David runs a cafe on the Mt. Crosby campus. Wife Debbie works for a westside oil company.

Their plan was to retire in five years and move to Cle Elum one in it."

Google, Facebook nabbed

OLYMPIA — Attorney General Bob Ferguson announced that Google will pay $217,000 and Facebook $238,000 over allegations the companies failed to maintain legally required information for Washington state political advertising placed on their online platforms since 2013.

"On June 4, Ferguson filed two campaign finance lawsuits in King County Superior Court asserting Google and Facebook failed to maintain information for political advertising required by Washington campaign finance laws. "These requirements have been in place since 1972, when Washington voters approved the original initiative on campaign finance transparency. "Washington campaign finance laws require political advertisers to maintain information about those who purchase advertising and make that information available to the public. "According to the lawsuits, Google and Facebook did not obtain, maintain, or provide any of the legally required information associated with Washington campaigns."

DSHS announces February food benefits are available in January

OLYMPIA - The Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS) announced that due to the partial federal government shutdown, most clients would receive their basic food benefits for February no later than Sunday, Jan. 20.

The USDA Food and Nutrition Services (FNS) directed state agencies to issue Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), known as Basic Food in Washington, to minimize the potential impact of any lapse in funding because of the shutdown.

"Healthy food is foundational to our well-being and without it, we struggle to fully contribute to our communities," said Babs Roberts, Director for the DSHS Community Services Division within the Economic Services Administration.

"In our state, over 900,000 children and adults receive food benefits. Seventy-five percent of the people who receive Basic Food do not receive any other cash assistance to make ends meet."

SNAP recipients normally see their monthly food benefits arrive on their Electronic Benefits Transfer (EBT cards) anywhere from the first of the month to the 20th.

DSHS is urging clients who receive February benefits early to budget carefully. "Some recipients - those who get their benefits on the 20th of each month, for example - will be going two months between SNAP disbursements," Roberts explained. People will want to ensure that the benefits they are receiving now last as long as possible.

DSHS is keeping its website along with its Facebook and Twitter accounts updated as it receives guidance from the federal government.

At this time, if the shutdown does not end by March, it is unclear of the impacts, but DSHS does acknowledge there could be some disruption to programs and services.

For more info, keep visiting the agency's Economic Services Administration's website.

Full court press on salmon predators

PORTLAND, OR - It was a good year for those angling for northern pikeminnow in the Columbia and Snake rivers. More than 3,000 people registered for the 2018 Northern Pikeminnow Sport Reward Program.

Combined, they spent more than 23,000 angler days catching and removing 180,271 of these salmon-eating fish, protecting young salmon and steelhead from predation.

While harvest was down a bit from 2017 due to higher river flows, angler success was better in 2018.

Average catch per angler per day in 2018 was 7.52, up from 7.36 in 2017. All together, anglers were paid about $1.4 million for their efforts.

The program, funded by the Bonneville Power Administration, has run annually from May 1 through Sept. 30 for more than 20 years.

160 trees harvested and sold at Christmastime

CLE ELUM KIWANIAN Hartwig Vetheuer presents Kip Fox with a gift to acknowledge her significant role in the club's 2018 Christmas tree sale and fundraiser in Cle Elum. "This one was the most successful sale in the 26 years we've been doing it," said Vetheuer. "We harvested 160 trees and sold 160. We're grateful to the Nature Conservancy for allowing the trees to the club and to the patrons of this very important fundraiser. Proceeds go right back into the community, mostly to our youth programs."

Five interesting facts about Martin Luther King, Jr.

CLE ELUM - Monday, Jan. 21, was Martin Luther King Jr. Day. Here are some interesting insights into this American icon's life.

1. King was the youngest person awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964.
2. At the Atlanta premiere of the movie Gone with the Wind, Martin sang with his church choir.
3. There are over 750 streets in the United States named after Martin Luther King, Jr.
4. He was awarded the Congressional Gold Medal and the Presidential Medal of Freedom.
5. The name on his original birth certificate was Michael King. This was a mistake, however. He was supposed to be named after his father who was named for Martin Luther, the leader of the Christian reformation movement.

Adelson on life, and volunteerism

Adelson is appearing on the Upper County... among other things she does, she writes content to the NKC Tribune.

of the... for the... source, Cle Elum Eagles. She's on the Roslyn Art Festival planning committee. But there's another facet of Adelson, one that showed itself when she first arrived in the Upper County. "I worked as a K-12 substitute teacher at the Easton and Cle Elum-Roslyn school districts because I love teaching just about anything," she smiled, "be that physics, guitar, English, history, PE or anything in between. I've also done some work in Special Education."

What's her motivational quote, the one that serves as her wellspring?

"I've had several over the years, based on what was going on in my life.

"In college, for instance, it was: don't let school get in the way of my education.

"At this writing it's: live life to the fullest - and - a quote from Rabbi Hillel: 'If I am not for myself, who will be for me? If I am not for others, what am I? And if not now, when?'"

What's on her Bucket List? It's a lengthy one, representative of her wish to live life to its fullest.

"I'd like to do more traveling. I've never been to Australia or New Zealand. I'm a diver and I'd like to try the Great Barrier Reef.

"I'd also like to visit Chile, Morocco, the Grand Canyon, the Galapagos Islands, go on a photo safari in Africa, fly a helicopter and swim with the wild dolphins again.

"I'd like to volunteer for organizations helping sea turtles, orphaned elephants, dolphins, chimpanzees, orangutans, and/or gorillas."

What are some of the most valuable lessons she's garnered from her life so far?

"Embrace life's adventures. Make the best out of any situation - and find the good in everyone."

About the Open Door Clinic
Angie Love has been the nonprofit's director for the past three years. She took the job after graduating from Central Washington University with a degree in Public Health.

"The Open Door Clinic,"

she said, "is a nonprofit founded in 1999 by Doctors Mark Larson and Robert Davis. Our service is made possible by volunteer doctors, some nurses and medical students studying at Central Washington University.

"2019 is our 20th year, so our plan is to host a number of larger fundraisers.

"I just met with Viva Rogers in Cle Elum. She presented us with a $1,000 check on behalf of the Eagles Craft Club.

"It seems the Upper County has a lot more residents willing to help so we can bring our services to the community.

"Since we started bringing the dental van to Cle Elum, Viva has been telling everyone about us, getting sponsors and donors, and finding people needing our help. Dental health is key to overall health.

Why does Love work in Public Health?

"I'm really passionate about helping disadvantaged people have a healthy life. "Kittitas County is a good place for this work. Did you know it has the highest rate of uninsured individuals in the state? I was kind of shocked to discover that."

Want to get involved? Sponsors, donors, volunteers and people in need of non-emergency healthcare are invited to call Love at 360-929-7266. The nonprofit is also on Facebook: Open Door Clinic Ellensburg.

THORP SCHOOL LEVY...

partnership has been solid. How so? Look at what's going on in the school district. We're going to run a $1 billion to get back everything we've lost at Thorp School half way have 1.07 or 1.06 administrators for the building. To make the decisions to and to those kinds of ages? Well, it used to be local school boards. They public hearings and social input. They took k at the needs. The principal sat down with them and we're going to need this then they set the levy. To get the funding. This month, we can't at anymore because they

Then, the money that's left in the $1.50 levy is all for enrichment, meaning pay for a full-time counselor, a nurse one day a week, and the extra Para's we need. I could go on down the list, to include things such as extracurricular programs and teachers paid to run them."

The strategy
"What we want to do with the Capital Projects Levy has become our strategy and our theme. Just maintain what we have. We're not asking for new buildings. We're just asking to maintain what we have and the services we provide in preparation for maybe four or five years out, when we'll need to tackle capital projects aimed to modernize, replace or upgrade infrastructure and facilities."

they do that, we're going to move up on the list. So we're hoping that while we're maintaining our buildings for the next four years — with help from the Capital Levy we're proposing in February — we'll eventually get that grant. The good news, of course, is grant dollars aren't local money.

If we work together as a community we could end up with buildings that last for a generation.

What capital levy dollars would fund
The entire list of prioritized capital expenditures is available to everyone. Contact the school for a copy, but to give you an idea, the below are some of the items that are slated, each targeted for one of the years under the four-year levy umbrella:

• Upgrade the computer lab, the CTE shop, Chrome (Laptop) carts, the shop's security and septic systems, dialysis valves and student lockers (currently leased).

• Build a playground fence (currently leased).
• Build a greenhouse.
• Upgrade the kitchen, irrigation and sprinkler systems.
• Install a new front sidewalk.
• Paint targeted building exteriors and interiors.

Levy community meeting
Perkins held the first community meeting on Jan. 15 at Thorp School. The next is slated for tonight, Jan. 17, 6 p.m., at Sunlight Waters.
